QUESTION 1: From my understanding, the ultimate "thing" about our existence, whether it be in physical or else, is love. Without it, there is no reason to exist at all. So when we die, we leave our loved ones behind and our "new" state of being in the astral makes us "less" loving to what we had before we died. I know our "new" sense is "all is well" since everyone comes to the astral sooner or later and that we in practicality still have love for everyone we left behind even in all other life scenarios. but I can't help thinking, why, why does those feelings of love fade so quickly after death? At least, that is what I read from many testimonies; the sense of importance fades.

ANSWER: Good questions. It's not that we become less loving when we leave the Matrix or when we enter the astral—we will just look at things from another perspective. Here on Earth, the definition of love is often limited and connected to relationships, and this kind of love is much diluted because it's more often than not based on trauma bonding. For example, if a man has had a turbulent relationship with his mother, he tends to attract and be subconsciously attracted to a woman who resembles his mother, so he can heal the lack of love he experienced as a child. The same goes for a woman and her relationship with her father. This healing usually will not take place, however, because both partners in the adult relationship are unaware of this connection and don't know how to heal it. On Earth, what more or less occupies us humans is the subconscious continuous search for True Love. The bonding is often done via the artificial soul rather than the genuine soul, although it's the genuine soul who is trying to regain a higher perspective of love. Once we're out of here, the loss is no longer the identity we were in love with on Earth that is important, but we see it from a higher perspective, which has to do with freeing as many genuine souls as possible from this Matrix. We don't care about earthly identities and personalities, which are just programs, anyway (see videos 201 and 202).

The memories and feelings about our loved ones shortly after death is probably mainly because of increased amnesia, as we slowly but surely shed many of our artificial soul layers. Our focus is changed, as well, from our Earth existence to how to navigate in the Afterlife.

The priorities we have valued in this physical life may be shown to have an entirely different meaning once we see a bigger, expanded picture from a higher density perspective.

QUESTION 2: I've recently come to the conclusion that I was involved in MK Ultra. I have many alters, that activate during different points of the day or I might go out to smoke a cigarette. I don't remember many things, although they're coming back slowly. I need an honest opinion; was my own freewill there during the process during the times I was doing things I can't remember (judging from other people's experience)? Because I worry that when I exit the grid and go to Orion, I would be judged for the things I may have done in a state of trance?

ANSWER: In our opinion, much of our freewill has been overstepped by the Overlords since the creation of this construct. Even if you, somewhere along the line, to a certain degree gave your conscious or subconscious consent to this, you did not have the full knowledge of what this entails, and if you are not allowed to see it from all perspectives, it's manipulation and trickery, as we see it. This will definitely be taken into consideration when you get to Orion—you will be listened to and able to present your case. We wouldn't be too worried about it.

Once the alters are created, they become like programs, and these programs were created to act in certain ways beyond your control. If we were you, we would do the best we can of our situation—that's all you can do.

To the best of our understanding, no one is judged for the wrong doings of others who have abused us, and we are all individually allowed to answer for ourselves with a personal one on one audience with the Queen of Orion. If you think you have been treated unfairly against your freewill, then you will be given the opportunity to state your case.

QUESTION 3: If the Status Quo of the grid changes, will you be informed right away? I mean, let's say they block the holes of the grid and no spirit can go through it anymore, will your informant have access to this event and tell you?

ANSWER: I don't know if I would be informed in that case, but it's not so important because the holes in the Grid are essentially internal. You and I and everybody else who are waking up are the ones who create these holes. The only way for the Overlords to close the holes is to close us off, i.e. by stopping and even reversing our awakening process. So long as people are waking up and think outside the box, there will be holes in the Grid.

QUESTION 4: In the Bible it says "My father's house has many mansions." This is from the King James' version. Now that I know enough about astrology, I know that the word "mansions" is used to indicate certain positions, I believe, of planets and stars. And this in turn generates energy that affects everything on the planet.

The Bible goes on to say that "Jesus" prepares rooms for his people in these "mansions."

Could look into this enough to translate it into what it really scientifically means?

ANSWER: Jesus was speaking to his disciples, who had questions and doubts, when he said this. He would have used references to which his disciples could relate. The description of Jesus preparing many rooms for his disciples would correspond to how living quarters were arranged at the time, or the construction and design of Temple properties. In this, Jesus is likely telling his disciples that if they continue to promote the Word of God, they will be rewarded when this physical life is over. The Bible is coded and written in such a way that it can have multiple meanings. This seems to be the standard operating procedure for giving information to humanity – make it cryptic and lay the responsibility on humanity’s shoulders for how they interpret it. It allows them to keep their hands clean and say, “We told them the truth. It’s not our fault if they misinterpreted it.”

Houses and Mansions are terms used in astrology, just like you mention, so yes, we would say this is relevant. Astrology alone is not enough to explain the biblical terms, however, but it is part of the picture. We, Ariel and Wes, look at these mansions as densities within the Matrix, and this is where En.ki’s ascension process comes into play. In the ascension process, we go where our soul vibration takes us, and the planets play a big part in this, which is conveyed in ancient texts. There, we learn about the Seven Heavens, where each Heaven is ruled by a certain planet or other celestial bodies. Each planet vibrates within a certain frequency (sound), so it’s reasonable to presume that the planets in themselves have a lot to do with the ascension process and with projection and manipulation. The vibratory range of the planets could easily be set with technology to resonate within the range of the soul vibration that is allowed within the Matrix, and each soul resonates somewhere within this range, until we leave the Construct. Earth has its own vibration, so as long as we vibrate within its range, we continue being recycled here. If we start vibrating higher or lower, we will leave the Earth realm in favor of a higher or lower existence within the Matrix boundaries, unless we exit through the Grid.

QUESTION 5: Can you give it a shot to explain "where" the BLA (Between Lives Area) is located in relation to us here in daily life? Is it "above" us but we can't see due to it being outside our visible light range? The BLA consist of the Tunnel of Light plus the Soul Recycling area? Would you classify this as "high tech" stuff?

ANSWER: The BLA is located in a realm of partial nonphysical reality that we cannot perceive because of the limitations to the human physical body. It is an overlay to this physical reality. In other words, the BLA is part of what most people describe as the astral realm and the astral realm is all around you, all the time, even though we cannot perceive it unless we are detached from our physical body such as in dreaming or out of body experiences.

If we want to be esoteric about it, the BLA exists in our minds. If our minds weren't tuned into the idea of a BLA, the BLA wouldn't exist. But to answer the question in a more direct way, the BLA is supposedly located in different "places," such as the Moon, Mars, and even in the Appalachian Mountains here on Earth (but in a higher density, of course). More correctly, these are three of the "Afterlife Stations," from where the technology to hold this in place is located. We are preparing an article right now about the different paths souls seemingly can take after death, and there are different tunnels of light to choose from. The best way to look at these tunnels is to see them as portals, which they basically are.

QUESTION 6: Was it the Orion Queen outside the Matrix/Patrix that came up with the idea of the flood to end the experiment? (And then Enki went back on his word and saved DNA and started it all over again)

I would imagine there would have been mass trauma/suffering at the time of the flood, correct? Was there a between life area trap at that time? (I'm basically trying to figure out if they saw it at least one or two steps ahead of the flood)

If it was the queen or council outside Patrix, do you think that something was done to mitigate the trauma and suffering?

ANSWER: There was no BLA before the Flood. It was Khan En.lil who first suggested terminating the Experiment with a deluge, and it's our understanding that there was a lot of discussion back and forth within the Council to weigh different options against each other. The final decision was then to terminate the Human Experiment. Yes, there was trauma involved because people drowned, but we didn't have an artificial soul then, like we do now, and just like in a computer game, our physical bodies were and are just avatars. We knew that we could go back to Orion as Genuine Souls. The main difference between our experience and a computer game, in this sense, is that the human avatars can feel pain. The trauma and suffering doesn't stay with the genuine soul once the trauma is over—it only remains within the soul as a memory and an experience we can draw from in future creations.

QUESTION 7: I still do not comprehend why you would want to make money out of crypto-currency when your main objective is to get out of here? If one is well-off, it becomes harder to leave this construct; perhaps that is why we, the majority, who feel we have had enough, are so looking forward to exiting.

ANSWER: It is for the same reason we choose to use money in this current system. We have things for which we need to pay. We could choose NOT to use money, but it makes life incredibly hard. Crypto-currency will be the new means for transaction on a global scale. We are in the middle of the transition, at this moment. If we can improve our quality of life, and the health, safety, and comfort of our family, for the remainder of our time here, then it is our choice to do so. Medical care, for one example, is not free.

Buying cryptos doesn't necessary have to do with getting rich or not. Very soon, fiat money and credit cards, as we know them, will be obsolete, and cryptos will take over. If we are still alive then, which most of us will be, we will now have a choice whether to think ahead or not. If we don't, we will still need to accept the cryptos if we want to continue to buy and sell. Why do we want to suffer in poverty for the rest of our lives, or never have enough, when we can potentially use the System for our own benefit? This is how the Matrix is set up, and we need to make choices how we want to navigate it. It's up to each person whether they want to invest in cryptos or not.

And honestly, how do your survive now in this fiat-based system? You probably gladly receive a paycheck in exchange for your services because you don't want to starve and become homeless. Now, we're changing to cryptos, and fiat money will be worthless. What are you going to do? Are you going to refuse using cryptos and live in poverty because you don't like the idea of cryptos? We don't like cryptos, either, but we can't change the fact that it's coming.

QUESTION 8: What do you know and/or think about Sekhmet and/or Bast and their connections to Ea? I don't work intensively with them at the moment, but they feel like they are my family, more or less, and this worries me sometimes. If they ARE part of Ea's crew - are we able to befriend some of Ea's crew without being overly tied to or imprisoned by him and his constructs?

I am conflicted about working with the Moon and Sekhmet and Bast or letting those ties remain; that is my issue. I am interested in yours and the people in your community thoughts on the subject.

ANSWER: If you are conflicted, then this might mean that you are experiencing two (or more) contradicting perspectives. We suggest that you evaluate each perspective very deeply to decide which one is in best alignment with your own intentions. Then, your decision might come easier. For example, why would you continue to do something which does not give you a good feeling? Ask yourself why you are doing it, and why you are resistant to stop it. Are you perhaps experiencing a desire or need to feel connected to a family or a community of higher order beings in an attempt to feel more powerful, yourself? Be honest with yourself and determine what this practice is giving you and why you feel you are lacking this thing in your life. When you have determined what it is you are gaining from the practice, you can decide if it is something beneficial or not, and whether you can do it on your own or are you preferring to rely on the intervention of forces you perceive to be more powerful than yourself, thus giving away your own power? We do not need the help or assistance from other beings to be powerful in our own lives. The fact that you have stated this connection as a “tie” might be some indication as to how your Higher Self is perceiving the connection. We would suggest evaluating and cutting any “ties” that have the potential to feed from our energy.

Just as Isis, Inanna, Aphrodite, Ereshkigal, Ishtar, and Hathor, for example, are different titles for the same deity, depending on their location and/or function at different time periods, Sekhmet and Bast are also the same deity, i.e. Isis, Inanna, etc. Sometimes, she acted as a sexual fertility goddess (Aphrodite) and other times as a war goddess (Inanna). This should also explain the connection to Ea/En.ki—they were lovers, until En.ki was castrated by Ninurta. Then, Marduk and Isis became lovers, until Isis left them both. Her current whereabouts are not known, but she has not returned to Orion or showed any interest in doing so.

We would say that it's very unsafe to work with any of the Overlords, including Sekhmet/Bast/Isiss. None of them has done anything to try to free us—merely the opposite. Working with them would not be considered favorable if your plan is to return to Orion—particularly not now, when you know who the Overlords are. It's your choice, but to drop it and focus on getting out of here instead seems like something you might want to consider. Otherwise, you would be put in the same category as the Overlords and be treated as such in Orion. To be blunt, it's even questionable if they would let you in at all.
