Hello friends! It's time for a new Q&A. Please send more questions to wespenreproductions@gmail.com, and put Q&A in the subject line, so I won't miss your email.

QUESTION 1: There are many self-help books regarding reprogramming your subconscious and affirmations. Are these types of actions effective in today's emerging singularity world?

ANSWER: Yes, they are very effective from my experience. Reprogramming myself has been extremely helpful. When I realize I'm doing or saying something that I don't like because it might be reactive or is stopping me in life, and I recognize that this is an old pattern of mine, I reprogram myself every time it shows up. I stop myself and change my pattern to something I prefer and do or say that instead. Most people who understand something about breaking patterns know that it typically takes 21-30 days, in general, to change a habit by continuously repeating the new habit and thus replacing the old. After or prior to the above time-period, I've noticed, my patterns do change, and the old patterns remain in the back of my mind, no longer powerful, until they "dissipate."

Affirmations are positive thoughts, which are always helpful, whether you give them to yourself, receive them, or give them to others.

QUESTION 2: I heard somewhere you can shift realities in this lifetime. There are people claiming they shifted to alternative realities by meditation. I am talking about meditating and waking up in a different house, different girlfriend etc. Is this possible? How would someone do this?

ANSWER: In fact, we are all changing timelines several times a day to a larger or lesser degree every time we make a choice. If you choose to go to the store and start driving, and halfway you change your mind and go home again, you abandon one potential in favor of another. If you'd gone to the store, you would be on a slightly different timeline.

But to comment on your question more directly: a soul can nanotravel between two locations, but not by taking the 3D body with her. You might have heard of bilocating, which is a soul thing, traveling to another location in another density or dimension, while still being in the 3rd Dimension simultaneously. This can feel very real and is real—we can be in more than one place at the same time by splitting our fires. Perhaps this is what they did?

QUESTION 3: If Kan Enlil is the Christ how can he be a warrior? I thought Christ was the spiritual counterpart of Sophia and was all about love and understanding? Even if Khan Enlil is an avatar of Christ it still seems odd that this avatar is a Sirian warrior. I think you mentioned that Khan Enlil was not very well understood when writing your Papers and his role became clearer when you researched the Gnostic teachings, but still it seems somewhat odd to me that Khan Enlil is a fierce warrior, just as his son is. Would you mind clarifying this if you can?

ANSWER: Yes, I'll try. Just like Sophia, Khan En.lil, as a soul, descended into the darkness/Kenoma. Both Sophia and the Khan exist in many, if not all dimensions simultaneously. So, there is a part of Christ who is a warrior—something that is mentioned in both the WPP, the Bible, the Gnostic texts, and almost all other ancient texts. I personally believe he did this on purpose to confront the Archons on “their level,” as it were. Both Ninurta/Archangel Michael Second in Command/Prince En.lil/Sabaoth and Christ/Archangel Michael First in Command/Khan En.lil oversaw the Orion defense forces to protect Orion from the Rebels. Thus, the Khan was active in Sirius, Arcturus, and in Spica, if I remember correctly—and probably in many more places. While we humans are doing our specific part down here, the Khan and Sophia are doing theirs elsewhere, and so is Sabaoth. In a way which is unknown to me, Khan En.lil as Christ the Spirit then funneled Spirit through the dimensions, and Sabaoth/Jeshua-Christ was the receiver and channel through whom the Gnostic message was funneled.

QUESTION 4: Would you say that forgiving yourself and forgiving others that have done you harm is very important if you plan on leaving this realm?

ANSWER: If that is helpful for your own progress, I would say yes. The reason it could be important is because unforgiveness, holding grudges against self or others, feeling revengeful, etc., are all attachments, which can prevent us from raising our frequency enough to get rid of these attachments, and therefore, it might be more difficult to exit. If that wasn't the case, I see no other reasons either or. We have freewill, of course, to do what we want, but freewill comes with a lot of responsibility. We always need to carefully think through the consequences of our actions and inactions before we go ahead and make a choice.

QUESTION 5: (The following question, which is the last one, is long, so I am going to answer it paragraph by paragraph. I thought it was interesting and didn't want to shorten it).

Question A: I see how the Wes Penre Papers (WPP) line up very well with the Gnostic texts, yet as always, the details are where I get mired. We are all aspects of Source/Monad and also Sophia, who is not really a person, but is wisdom and an Aeon, yet seems to be a character in a story of our creation. From my understanding, Sophia created the original humans as a way for her, through us, to descend to the second construct, ourselves in ignorance, to wake up Yaldabaoth/Enki. We agreed to this mission and once we did our job, we were to "graduate" all at one time and all of us together?

Answer A: That's correct.

Question B: As we all know, there was major upsets in this plan. Is Yaldabaoth so ignorant he doesn't have any idea of the Pleroma? Were we aware of our past in the second construct when we first agreed to this mission yet got further trapped in the reincarnation cycles and mind wiping only in our current 3rd construct?

Answer B: Yaldabaoth knows that the Pleroma exists, but he can't perceive of it because he wasn't born there and has never been there—he was born in the VOID—in the physical universe. He realized the Pleroma existed when he heard and saw his Mother and the image of a human in the cosmic water. Then he knew there was something “above him,” and that he is not the Highest God.

We humans had recollection in the beginning after we descended, from what I've learned, but Yaldabaoth's lower realm, 3D, is a realm of death—everything dies. So do we. Instead of letting us go after body death, he created the so-called recycling center and had us reincarnate over and over. Before every new lifetime, we then got amnesia. It is my understanding that full amnesia didn't happen until in the 3rd Construct, i.e., after the Deluge.

Question C: So, with all this in mind, once we wake up, and we can escape through the grid on body death, how does it benefit the rest of humanity that will not wake up no matter what we do? It seems an odd assignment when only a small percentage of us are able to wake up at all, having accomplished very little, especially where Yaldabaoth is concerned. Wasn't it our job to wake HIM up? That seems a tall order when I can't even get my eldest child to see the truth and from what I have read, it's not our job? So what exactly is our job now?

Answer C: Whatever we do here to raise the frequency and bring in light by getting Gnosis, i.e., receiving a clearer and clearer channel to Spirit, we are making a difference—like the 100th Monkey Syndrome of sorts. But it might not be enough. When we exit, we do so because we have reached a point where it's possible to do due to our own inner work, but those who are not yet ready still have their chances to break through their inner veil later. They can do it at anytime before the Singularity is fully implemented. They also get a last chance during the Consummation of the Age, when judgment falls on this Realm and humans and Yaldabaoth have to make a choice. According to the Gnostic texts, Yaldabaoth will then eventually destroy his own Archons and lastly himself. Humans can choose which direction they want to go at that point. Their mindset at that time, and how they vibrate, will be crucial when making the choice. It was not meant to be this hard—we were supposed to do it together.

Question D: I am having a hard time now with the notion that Sophia "did this to us" or that she is somehow not helping us. I am thinking that we are tiny portions of her and not as children really, but part of her very fire so to speak, so therefore, are we *her*? Are we at some point in our development *wisdom*, if Sophia is an Aeon? If not, then are we her children and that is why we are separate? Am I making any sense?

Answer D: Yes, we are a portion of her, split into individual units of consciousness, aka souls. We have Sophia's soul-fire, but also her Spirit. And since Christ funneled the Gnostic message, we also have opportunity to open up to the Christ Spirit and become "whole," so we better can fulfill our part of the mission, for one. So, we are wisdom, and this is the reason why we humans curiously try to figure things out—we are curious beings, which was the reason Sophia Wisdom created this Universe to begin with. We are just like her, and we need to learn how to use the wisdom we gain by becoming more and more compassionate, empathetic, and loving.

Sophia sent us down deeper and deeper into her own mind's "shadow side" as probes or lighthouses to try to light up this darkness as a team and flesh out the darkness. That was our mission. Compassion, empathy, and love are the main ingredients in succeeding with our task.
