Hello, this is Wes Penre. Welcome to another Q&A! I need more questions, so please submit at wespenre2@gmail.com (yes, a new email address), and don't forget to put Q&A in the subject line, so I will not miss your email. And now to the questions:

QUESTION 1: Is Science the AI? Science is telling us what to do on every aspect of our life. People rely more on science "proof" than on instincts. I assume this is the way the AI is getting control over us (?). I assume AI is needing us, and we don't really need AI, so when we drop the science theories, would we be free?

ANSWER: Someone posted the following quote from Albert Einstein on my forum, and I agree whole-heartedly: "Logic will get you from A to Z; imagination will get you anywhere." I made a video on imagination not too long ago. For those who missed it, please check out my video section at <https://wespenrevideos.com/2021/06/05/video-259-imagination-versus-the-internet/>. The full URL will be in the transcript to this video.

Also, Walter Russell, a metaphysical researcher in the early to mid-1900s, argued that the reason scientists cannot figure out the secrets of the Universe is because they left God out of the equation. And who is God? Well, that's a big question, but if we narrow it down to our human level of existence, we are all gods, and ultimately, we are God Himself, Itself, Herself, or however we want to look at it. In our sphere of existence, i.e., on a soul level, we are creators, so we can choose to create with or without God being included in the process. But depending on which one of the two we choose; we get different results. One will take us from A to Z, but not further, and it will postulate what it can't explain. Science is essentially about the understanding of matter. And not even matter can be understood without the spiritual perspective. Therefore, as Walter Russell put it: science and religion (read, spirituality) need to merge for humanity to truly evolve; something he might have gotten from the Enlightenment era in the 1700s. When the two merge, we have a better understanding of both the physical and spiritual realms.

So, is science akin to AI? In a sense, I would say, because our earthly material realm is built around science and technology—what I called Orion technology in the Wes Penre Papers (WPP). Is there more to the correlations between AI and the material universe? I would say so, but more research is needed...

QUESTION 2: I have a question for you regarding Orion. What will happen to the star systems that were conquered by the Archons within the 8th Heaven/Orion during or after the destruction of the Kenoma/Patrix? Will they be also destroyed in the process? If they don't, will the Divine Forces (aka Sabaoth and the MIKH-MAKH) still be at war with these star systems?

ANSWER: If we use the Gnostic texts as a reference to this, the archontic forces will be destroyed in the next Consummation of the Age. This means that the Archons and their cohorts, whom we call "extraterrestrials" (which they are, per definition), choosing not to redeem themselves and repent, will succumb during the process. Consequently, the conquered star systems and constellations will be redeemed, too, and taken back by Orion, as it were.

QUESTION 3: Can you tell us what the experience of death will be like from your point of view and years of research? For me this would help me to prepare when the moment comes. I know everyone has their own experience, but is there something that generally happens?

I also want to ask you how we can stop being attached to this construct.

ANSWER: The answer is partly in your question; everyone will have their own experience, and they are based on our beliefs and belief systems. Again, I want to refer back to my video about imagination. Imagination is one of the key components for creation, and if you imagine an afterlife in Hell that's what you might experience. If you believe in a God on a cloud, you might find him there, because you create those things. They become real for you. If you are very fearful, you might experience something that will frighten you.

But if you've done your research to the best of your ability and realize what this realm is and how creation works, you can choose a different path, not based on earthly belief systems but on having penetrated those beliefs in your own mind. You are now willing to experience a new reality, outside this containment, perhaps. This is where exiting the Grid comes in. So, when you die, and your only intention and attention is on exiting, you will experience the Grid, and if you have detached yourself fully from this reality, you will vibrate on a higher frequency than the Grid. You will see the holes, and you can pass through.

Regarding how to detach: you will know when you're ready, and if you ask this question, there are probably things you still need to work on detaching from. If you would leave this construct today, what would you miss? Think about that and think hard. Is there anything here that you are not ready to let go of and be willing to return for? If something pops up in your mind when you ask yourself this question, pay attention! What is it? This or those things are what you need to work on detaching from. It doesn't mean you need to avoid these things while you're still on Earth, but you need to be willing to let go once your body expires. You will get to a point when you don't need to ask yourself that question anymore. You know that you're ready. That's when you are within the higher frequency range necessary to bypass the Grid system.

QUESTION 4: I am in contact with various people working on attaining better spiritual sight. One in particular is using prolonged induced DMT exposure in order to remain at whatever state of insight and to map and interpret what is there. I am weary of intrusive technology but open to natural altered states. Are there natural substances that can be used to put us in a longer state of awareness to be able to "see" more of our "world? "

ANSWER: I am not against using mind-expanding substances, but I don't promote them, either. Some people have had profound experiences from them, undoubtedly, while for others they have created nightmarish scenarios. What you experience depends on your state of mind when you take them. Are you fearful, curious, of a high vibration, low vibration? What are your beliefs, and how strongly are you attached to them? All this matters. You can have a spiritual experience, or you can pull up dark images from your own inner abyss and anything in between—it all depends.

If people want to experiment with this, it's their choice, of course, and I am not judging it. But to try to create a prolonged experience in the sense you are putting it is nothing I recommend. It sounds to me like an escape from this reality. We are not trying to escape. We are human beings, and we are connected to Earth. We need to be both grounded and lofty at the same time; we must find equilibrium, aka balance. The best results we can get when on a spiritual path is to look at spirituality from a grounded position. Then, we can get a fuller picture and without substance use. Not being grounded while still being a human on Earth is per definition an escape; something all spiritual explorers need to think about. Escape is a common phenomenon in the spiritual community.

QUESTION 5: In the WPP you mention that at the Consummation of the Age Sophia will retract her Spirit. Which age do you think she will do this, the upcoming one? We are going from the age of Pisces (Christ as Thoth) into Aquarius (En.ki's own age) which will be when the Singularity is long implemented. What would Sophia retracting her Spirit look like? Carnage and increased insanity tenfold perhaps?

ANSWER: I would like to take the opportunity to expand. I think the Singularity now has its own motion, solely forced by humans, not ETs or Archons. The idea and initiative to the Singularity was probably once upon a time done by those not from here. However, once we have had the means to do it, we have, just like in the biblical Tower of Babel, tried to become gods by seeking physical immortality. We are afraid of death, so we no longer need ETs to tell us what to do; we are self-propelled. Again, not saying it's not an ET agenda, but currently, we humans are doing this to ourselves.

The basic agenda behind it, discussed in the WPP, is to take control over the nano-world and eventually use humanity to attack Orion, i.e., what is outside of our Patrix system/universe. Those who we call the Archons, based on the Gnostic texts, and ETs who are in control of this realm, know the Consummation of the Age is coming, so the Archons and ETs need to bypass that and survive through us. Creating a new digital reality and transmute humanity and transport us into a new universe, based on nanotechnology, seems to be their plan to escape the unescapable. This could be what many people are talking about right now without really understanding the motives behind it—a new reset. Out with the old and in with the new. What if the controllers think that when the Kenoma/Patrix will be consumed by the Divine forces, they have their own, new digital nanotech-based universe to escape into? And from there, they can attack Orion? Or more likely, attack Orion before the Consummation happens? If so, will they succeed? I doubt it, but they might try, and in the process, they will succumb per the Gnostic texts, but many humans might succumb with them—those who choose the Singularity path and won't repent even during the Consummation of the Age, which will be their last chance to do so.
