Hello, this is Wes Penre with another Q&A. Thank you for sending in questions! Please continue sending in more to wespenre2@gmail.com, and put Q&A in the subject line, or I might miss your email. Here are today's questions and answers:

QUESTION 1: Can you briefly describe what the difference is between incarnation and reincarnation vs recycling?

ANSWER: Incarnation is just the term for living a life here in a physical body. When it comes to the difference between reincarnation and recycling, I think it depends on whom you ask. For some, it is the same thing, although the word recycling has a harsher tone to it. I tend to separate between them because in general, one of two things seems to happen to people before they come back to another incarnation, and I believe it might have to do with the soul's beliefs. People with a strong religious belief or with some other conviction over what will happen after death go to a place of like-minded believers first. This place is usually already created in the astral by humans having projected those realms over a long period of time through their beliefs while incarnated on Earth. Here, the soul lingers, watched over by spirit guides, who sooner or later will persuade the soul to go back to Earth for another ride.

The other alternative is the recycling, which happens when souls go to the so-called tunnel of light, which I have learned leads to the recycling center, where the soul, after a quick life review and an overlook at the soul's "karma," she is sent back into another body quite instantly. I am under the impression that those who take this path are not convinced of anything specific happening after death, and therefore, they do not go to a false Heaven, Hell, or any other place some people strongly believe in.

QUESTION 2: Some time a little before The Deluge, did En.ki plan on saving Noah's bloodline and preserve the DNA of his original Global Elite alone? If everything was wiped out on Earth/Tiamaat, how was the Seth line (the spirited humans) preserved? How did the spirited humans (us) continue on in the current construct? Is it more of a metaphor?

ANSWER: According to my research, Noah's Ark was not a boat floating on the ocean, but rather a spaceship or airship of some sort. In the Gnostic texts, it says that Noah, his family, and those of his kind were "hidden in a cloud" while the Flood happened. This cloud, according to what I have learned, is a metaphor for something airborne. Many think that all humankind was washed away with the Flood, but if we read different ancient texts, we see there were survivors. Noah's line then became the continuation of the so-called "Divine bloodline," the Seth line you're talking about. Recent research also shows there have been many Floods and many resets since this construct was created, and Noah's Flood is just one of those, but the one best known.

QUESTION 3: You wrote in the WPP that there are star races that have gone through what we are going through, in terms of the rapid rise in technology in short periods of time, and a Grid surrounding their worlds, but have managed to break down their grids as a mass consciousness. Are you talking about positive oriented star races in the Kenoma or in the 8th Heaven?

ANSWER: In the WPP, but also in other researchers' material, the concept is that this 3D reality is an Experiment. However, it's just one experiment of many. What the Gnostics call the Kenoma is another name for the experiment we are parts of, and this includes the Seven Heavens. The Earth and the solar system do not look like we have been told by NASA. The entire Kenoma exists within what we could consider the Earth's atmosphere, which has many dimensions and densities. The other experiments take place, and have taken place, outside the Kenoma, in what I called Orion in the WPP. We are also part of Orion, but we are contained in our own universe/Kenoma, and most people don't know how to leave.

These days, more and more people subscribe to the flat earth theory, but I think it's more complicated than that. It's both flattish and roundish at the same time, but the ground we walk on is flattish, and the entire construct sits under a cupola or a Dome. Outside this Dome is what I call Orion. There have been human experiments outside the Dome, and according to what I have learned during the WPP years, these humans/Namlu'us have graduated, while we have not.

QUESTION 4: We started as homo sapiens, then homo sapiens sapiens. Was homo sapiens also interdimensional? I'm assuming that's when the modification began?

ANSWER: We, the current version of humans, often like to believe that we are more advanced than the previous version; particularly as we have all this technology. The way I have come to see it, that's not true. There have been many civilizations throughout history that have risen and fallen, and there have been many resets over the millennia. The last one might have happened in much more recent time than most people think. I would say that civilizations have reached a peak, and then there has been a catastrophe of some kind, often orchestrated, which destroyed that civilization, and the survivors then had to start all over, but could to some degree use part the technology that survived from the previous civilization. When we were Namlu'us, we were tall and thin, unlike today, when we are shorter and stockier. The difference in height and body shape, although tinkering has taken place, too, is because after certain resets, this place has become denser, and our bodies have adjusted to that, perhaps with some help from "outside." These density shifts have, in my opinion, been ongoing since we, who are in this Experiment, started our journey here. Now, with the Singularity around the corner, it's time again.

All living souls are interdimensional, but most of us have forgotten how to use our multidimensionality to our benefit.

QUESTION 5: Regarding the concept that the multiverse, the KHAA, and the 4% universe we currently live in, is constantly being created through an expansion (big bang) and then being destroyed through an end cycle collapse process--what happens to all the created souls / spirited beings from the multiverse at the end of that cycle, when everything would seemingly be destroyed? Could we as spirited beings survive the end / destruction of our entire multiverse and continue living into subsequent universal creative cycles? If so, will we be able to live as independent and sovereign beings--assuming we successfully escaped our current AIF Earth construct / grid, or would we only be able to survive into subsequent cycles by merging with the Creator Mother Goddess before the end of our current cycle?

ANSWER: As mentioned in the above answers in this Q&A, there have been many resets in this Construct since it all began, but in general, the destruction has happened in the physical world, albeit in slightly different densities. We, the soul/Spirit, always survived, and have continued our journey anew and rebuilt what was destroyed. It does not matter what will happen to this Construct in the end; you as a separate soul will live on, going on other adventures elsewhere, as a unique, individual being.

Ultimately, we all have a choice to return “home,” i.e., to the Spiritual Realm/the Pleroma, but not until we choose to do so and are ready. At that point, we leave the physical universe altogether, shed our soul, which is of the physical universe, and become pure Spirit. We again return from where we started; we become the Aeons/Spirits that we originally were.

The Gnostic texts seem to imply that we might return to Sophia in Spirit at some point, but it also depends on how we interpret that. We are spirited beings, and when becoming aware of who we are, i.e., when we receive Gnosis, we unite with the Aeon Sophia on a spiritual level because now we can see that we are in this together with Her, who created all these universes. As an analogy, it’s like if you lose your mother and get amnesia, and you don’t know who your mother is anymore, so you fumble in the dark, searching for her. Then, from gaining the correct knowledge, you regain your insights of who you are, and you suddenly remember who your mother is and can reunite with her. This is simplified, of course, but I think we can use that as an analogy.

QUESTION 6: If travelling in our dreams is more or less astral projection, then wouldn't we be able to see our silver cords in the dream state? I've never seen one myself, but is that because I'm not putting intention into seeing it, and would that apply to anyone else who hasn't seen one?

ANSWER: There can be many reasons why we sometimes can see and sometimes can’t see the silver cord, which is the energetic cord that connects the soul with the physical body but breaks when the person dies. It is my understanding, from having listened to experienced people who have intentional out-of-body experiences (OBE’s) that many of them are describing seeing the silver cord. Others don’t mention it much, but it seems to me that most of those who travel in the astral with full perceptions are aware of the cord.

Dream state is different because it’s more of a subconscious experience. Although we are out-of-body when we dream, we are rarely in charge; we are just going through an astral narrative, and we are not often in control over it. So, the silver cord, unless that is part of the dream, is probably not going to be present in the dream narrative.
