Hello, and welcome back to another Q&A. Please submit more questions at wespenre2@gmail.com, and put Q&A in the subject line, so I can easily see your email. Now to today's questions and answers:

QUESTION 1: Are all the humans on earth spirited and souled, or are there humans who have no soul and spirit? I am confused on this topic as you have mentioned in the sixth level that some humans only have an artificial soul just enough to keep them going. Can you clarify?

ANSWER: This is what the Gnostic text, “The Secret Book of John” (long version) says: “The rulers [Archons] brought Adam into the shadow of death so that they might produce a figure again, from earth, water, fire, and the spirit that comes from matter, that is, from the ignorance of darkness, and desire, and their own false spirit. This is the cave for remodeling the body that these criminals put on the human, the fetter of forgetfulness. Adam became a mortal being, the first to descend and the first to become estranged.”

So, here we have two “Adams” in the above text; it’s the Adam who has Spirit, and it’s the Adam the Archons created, who only comprise a false, artificial spirit and lacks the Divine. Those, who lack the Authentic Spirit will not be able to genuinely connect with the Divine Realm. They have souls, like we do, or they would not be able to operate here, but they lack the ability to evolve, and they lack deep spiritual empathy and compassion, although they can imitate it. The Global EL-ite, and those who knowingly work for their agenda, immediately come to mind, but these humans with artificial spirit also walk around us, and we meet them every day, if we are to believe the Gnostic texts. The Archons did not just create one or two of them; there are many of them around. The ratio between Spirited humans and artificially spirited humans is unknown. We can learn who is who by knowledge, observation, and interaction, but it’s sometimes difficult to know because many authentically spirited people are disconnected from their spiritual part, until they wake up. And that’s the difference—they can wake up, while those with artificial spirit can’t.

QUESTION 2: In Video #273 Q&A #83 you mention the word "reset" multiple times. What exactly is a reset in terms of spirituality? I have read the pandemic has been referred to as an economic reset. Or is it a disguised reset for The Singularity?

ANSWER: In today’s world, the term “reset” is used for many things, not the least in financial circles. But when we, in the spiritual field, talk about reset, we usually mean a reset of civilizations. For example, Noah’s Flood was a reset, in which the so-called Atlantis was destroyed, and the survivors needed to start all over again in a denser reality. Research indicates that there have been multiple resets throughout history, and the true story of mankind and womankind has been warped, distorted, and replaced with false narratives to keep the truth away from us. Because, if we would know our true history/herstory, we would also know who we are, where we came from, what our purpose is, and where we are heading. That would be detrimental to the forces that are manipulating and trying to control us. These resets are still hinted at in our history by the stories of civilizations that rose and fell, and from ruins of earlier civilization found beneath our current buildings and monuments, often buried deep underground. Archaeologists find evidence of those all the time. Perhaps, there was a reset just a few hundred years ago, but more research needs to be done before I can properly back that up. And yes, I would suggest the Singularity is planned to become the next reset.

QUESTION 3: Regarding reincarnation, is it possible that our "future" life happened in the past, according to our linear perception of time?

ANSWER: Ultimately, there is only a present; there can't be anything else than that. Even though we perceive we are in the future five minutes from now, in five minutes, we are in the present time, five minutes later. The rest, we create in our minds, following a linear structure that we are used to. If you think about what happened yesterday, it seems like time passed between then and now, when yesterday is no more than a chain of experiences that more accurately can be put "on top" of each other in present time, rather than in a linear fashion. You can't "go back" to yesterday in the physical universe, but you can think about yesterday in your mind. However, that thought is still in present time.

In a similar fashion, you can also think about the future, which are events that you have not yet experienced in the physical world. But you are not moving into the future when you think about it; you are just creating an image in your head of a potential event you may or may not create in the physical in any present time. Then, in each present moment, you can make choices that eventually make you experience the "future" you are imagining, or you can make other choices so that the particular future will never occur. Your freewill and free choice determines your experiences. Thus, we are all responsible for what happens to us because we create it.

QUESTION 4: I have been wondering about the reasons behind filling the world up with soulless entities or Non-Player Characters in recent times. Some say up to 90% of people are soulless and not part of the original human soul group, which I know you have discussed on numerous occasions. So, if there is a plan to get humans into the cloud and invade Orion, then I'm assuming it is the souls of real humans that are needed, but in order to achieve said plan, you would need many other soulless humans to dilute the obvious resistance you would get from souled individuals on their own. To me the NPCs are therefore here to facilitate that strategy... what do you think?

ANSWER: Everybody contributes to what is, and will be, in the Cloud. The Cloud is the future Internet but without computers. You will have the Internet in your "head" instead, and you will have access to any data/information you're looking for. This means that genuinely spirited souls and those with a false spirit all contribute to the information in the Cloud. So, as I see it, the future cyborg-like human can theoretically be both spirited and non-spirited; we can be equally connected to the Cloud through nanotechnology, and the biological cells in our physical bodies will be replaced with nanobots and other nanotechnology, which makes our bodies more or less immortal, unless we have a serious accident, or something similar. Broken organs and body parts can be easily replaced with nanotechnology, and therefore, a heart, for example, can last forever by being exchanged over and over, when necessary.

Regarding the invasion of Orion, the Archons and their cohorts would need Spirited humans to break through the Grid, so in that sense, the NPC's, as you call them, are not in the equation.

QUESTION 5: I have learned through your papers, mainly through the Gnostic text series that as we wake ourselves up, we wake En.ki/Yaldabaoth up to his spirit as well. Is there any indicator that Yaldabaoth is redeeming himself at this particular time? I clearly see that The Global Elite are infighting amongst themselves to get to this particular goal called The Singularity and this goes for the AIF/Archons as well. It's apparent when you look at the world today, but what about En.ki's redemption from Orion, will they accept it? Is he trying to redeem himself on any level at all? Also, do you feel it is important to "forgive" En.ki and have compassion for him?

ANSWER: According to the Gnostic texts, when Sophia the Aeon noticed what she had created without her "consort," she repented and wanted to redeem herself. However, the part of her creation, which was Darkness/Ignorance, and matter, still existed in at least one of the universes she created (our universe). The first manifestation within this darkness was Yaldabaoth, and he is without genuine Spirit. He knows about the Spiritual Realm (the Pleroma), but he can't perceive of it because he was not created there. Sophia, in conjunction with other Aeons, are now trying to dissolve the Darkness that was created by shedding Light upon it. We, Spirited humans, live in the realm of this Darkness, and when we raise our frequency and reconnect with the Divine, we also shed Light on the Darkness and make the Darkness known for what it is, and then it is not dark anymore.

Yaldabaoth is part of this Darkness and ignorance. I do not see a legitimate reason to forgive or not forgive Yaldabaoth because he is the part of Sophia that has not yet repented and redeemed itself. So long as ignorance prevails, and Yaldabaoth is not repenting, we can't forgive because there is no repentance. If a spouse is constantly abusing us, for example, why would we forgive them if they don't repent? They will continue abusing us. Not until they repent can we decide whether to forgive them. Will Orion and the Higher Realms forgive Yaldabaoth if he repents? I would say yes because the purpose is to turn Darkness into Light. That is all that matters: to shed Light upon darkness. The first step is to replace ignorance with knowledge and take this knowledge/Gnosis to heart and apply it to ourselves.

Instead of forgiveness, when it comes to Yaldabaoth and the condition of this reality in general, one can apply acceptance, which comes from Knowledge and Understanding. Once we accept the situation as it is, we can start doing something about it, and the solution is always within. If we don't accept, we reject, and when we reject, we refuse to look into the Darkness to enlighten it. And remember, the greater truth is heart-based (spiritual) and not head-based.
