Hello dear friends, and thanks again for the questions you've sent in! I am in need of more, however, so if there is something you've been pondering and want someone to share it with and get their feedback, based on personal ponderings, please shoot an email my way at wespenre2@gmail.com, and put Q&A in the subject line, or I might miss it. You can send in as many questions as you want; it's not restricted to one. So, here are this week's questions and answers:

QUESTION 1: We humans have only explored about 5% of the world's Oceans. When the Tiamat catastrophe happened, did some of these deep-sea creatures survive? The part of Tiamat that catapulted closer to the Sun's debris was used by En.ki to create the new Earth so would it be perfectly logical to say that some or most of this deep-sea wildlife originate from Tiamaat? I have seen some of the deep-sea squids and certainly some of them do not originate from here and are true ET's. Is this also why we find pyramids, ancient structures millions of years old and dinosaur bones etc. on this planet, which is a new construct?

ANSWER: This question was sent to me before I released my previous video number 276, so in addition to this answer, please check that out; it's an important one. What we call planet Earth is a part of a much greater landmass, which I, for simplicity's sake, call Gaia. Gaia, which is also the embodiment of Sophia, is where the overall human soul group, descended into 3D, took place, resulting in the Namlu'u Experiment, discussed in the Wes Penre Papers (WPP). We, homo sapiens sapiens, live in a small, isolated section of Gaia, and we call this section, Earth. The part of the overall human soul group that is living on Earth is now limited to a life in a denser reality in a firmament (see Genesis 1), and surrounded by a Grid, comprising the collective soul energy of this subgroup of the original human soul group.

If we think of Gaia as the larger landmass, the being I called En.ki in the WPP created an experiment within the Experiment. He isolated a part of Gaia and put a dome over it, which is more like an egg-shaped structure than a dome (see revised picture on the screen or in the transcript). So, Earth is a part of Gaia.

When this Patrix/Matrix construct, comprising the Seven Heavens, aka the Kenoma, was isolated, whatever species that were then residing within the new Earth construct were trapped under the Dome. This includes species like Reptoids, perhaps the Greys, Bigfoot, and other creatures that people claim to have encountered. Most of those fled underground because the Earth experiment was meant to be mainly for the human soul group. The Earth's oceans were of course also contained within our current construct, including the deep-sea creatures. Overtime, because this is a much denser reality than the outside Gaia, virtually everything inside this construct shrunk in size and became sturdier, and here we are. What we call gigantic today is not gigantic compared to the creatures of Gaia. The so-called Namlu'u were also much taller and less dense.

So, all our wildlife, and even we humans, are originally extraterrestrials because none of us/it originated on Earth but on Gaia, the enveloping landmass. Thus, what ufologists call ETs are mostly terrestrial, seen from an Earth perspective, and ultimately Gaia inhabitants; they don't come from other planets in outer space, but some may very well arrive here from other dimensions and densities. Hope this helps.

QUESTION 2: Did the Animal Soul Group in the First Atlantis descend on Tiamaat/Earth like we did? How does death and reincarnation work for them? You mention in the Wes Penre Papers (WPP) that animals die in groupings and that a human cannot reincarnate as a tree (which is sentient) or an animal and vice versa because we have our own soul group, and this is my line of thinking as well. Do you think the Alien Invader Force (the AIF) controls the afterlife process for the animal soul group or are they coming back to Earth on a more conscious level?

ANSWER: Like I indicated in the previous answer, fauna and flora originated on Gaia and are still part of Gaia. In the WPP, I wrote a lot about the Living Library, a term borrowed from Barbara Marciniak's Pleiadians. What it really means is that when we were isolated within this Earth construct, whatever was already within its parameter remained in here, so everything on Earth is a combination of what exists outside Earth, but here everything is much denser (and generally smaller in stature).

I keep using the term, "as above so below," for it has proven to be a rule of cosmic proportions. Gaia and Earth exist as manifestations in all dimensions and densities, from the highest to the lowest. With what I consider an expanded view on the Universe and the Omniverse (see video 276), the human spirited soul group started out in the in-between-area of the Seventh and Eighth Heavens, as discussed in the Gnostic text, where a manifested part of Christ, the Aeon, aka Khan En.lil in the WPP, let the original human soul group manifest before we descended through the dimensions and densities, until we entered the frequency range we call Gaia, and finally, Earth. The story of the destruction of Tiamat I believe is a metaphor of what happened just before the Earth construct was created, and it happened somewhere on Gaia. The asteroid belt we supposedly see in "space," could very well be the "imprint" of the concept of that incident in our collective memory. This latter part is just my idea, and it is not backed up by anything, so take it for what it is.

Now to the question. Again, with an expanded view on how this construct is operating, the reincarnation of animals could be twofold, at least. The Archons might be in charge of the animal soul group and send soul energy into the animal body when a new animal is born. However, it could theoretically also be controlled by the Aeon in the Fourth Heaven, who is in charge of some of the reincarnation processes for humans, and therefore, hypothetically also for the animal soul group. My current take on it is that the animals are under Aeonic control, soul-wise, and not under Archontic control. However, I don't see that the animals are coming back to Earth in a conscious manner; it's a process that is done with technology. The animal soul group doesn't have our human computing capacity, and having read the little information I can find on this, the individual animal souls are derived from a pool of soul energy, and a fragment of that pool is sent down to an individual animal body just before birth.

QUESTION 3: In the sequels from the film "The Matrix" - "The Matrix Reloaded" and "The Matrix Revolutions" we are introduced to the character simply called "The Architect." When Neo meets him, he asks about the Oracle (a character from the first film). The Architect scoffs at the mere mention of the name Oracle. After seeing this scene, I could not help but wonder the following: is The Architect representing Yaldabaoth and The Oracle represents Sophia? Someone had commented on "The Matrix" on YouTube with the premise of "The Matrix" trilogies being based on Gnosticism. What are your thoughts on this, Wes?

ANSWER: Here is my interpretation: Yes, I definitely see Gnosticism in the Matrix series, and quite a lot of it. There is also a mix of other ancient texts embedded in the story, as well. The Oracle, I believe, makes a good metaphor for Sophia in a 3D manifestation. In the previous video, I talked about Sophia being manifested in all dimensions, and Isis, Inanna, NIN.MA, etc., and even Ereshkigal, can be said to be different manifestations, and even sub-archetypes, of the Mother Goddess, Sophia. The Architect in the Matrix series would be whom I called En.ki in the WPP, a title which would to some degree correspond with Yaldabaoth in the Gnostic texts.

QUESTION 4: Can meditation and trauma / shadow / inner child work help us to get more connected with spirit and operate from the spirit and less from the artificial soul? Would it be a good metaphor to describe the subconscious aspect of our mind as being like the Kenoma; that which is veiled in darkness and ignorance? Would healing our own traumas metaphorically light up our own inner kenoma / matrix?

ANSWER: What more consciously makes us reconnect with the Spirit within is what the Greeks called Gnosis, i.e., Knowledge. The Gnostic texts are said to be Divine in nature and convey spiritual knowledge. Received by our “spiritual heart,” we are able to transform the toxic Masculine we call patriarchy, into Divine Masculine. We then become more “whole,” meaning we get a balance between the Divine Feminine and the Divine Masculine. This, in combination with experience, creates Wisdom, which is the main characteristic of the Aeon Sophia when she herself is balanced. The Divine Masculine Christ Consciousness, previously more or less missing in this part of the universe, was funneled down to Earth, best remembered through the physical Jesus/Yeshua. But attempts had been made before Jesus, too, if we look further back in history.

However, you are correct when you suggest that what is generally called “shadow work” can be very beneficial to remove the barriers that prevent us from reconnecting with Spirit. So can meditation. What works best is quite individual, from what I have observed. What works for one person might not work as well for another, so each one of us needs to find our own way. Personally, I “reprogram” myself when I recognize habits that are subconscious and don’t benefit me. I replace them with conscious habits instead that do benefit me (see Video 274).

You are also correct in that we have our own kenoma/matrix inside us. It’s our own ignorance, which is mainly based on amnesia, due to the thick density in this construct. By turning darkness (ignorance) into light (knowledge/spiritual reconnection), it creates a transformation within, and that’s the secret to raising our vibrations to become more “ourselves” again; both on the soul and spiritual levels. You can’t light up the Kenoma from outside, trying to engage in the Matrix game; it must come from the inside. If you want to make a difference in the world, it always starts with inner contemplations, work, and insights. Raise your frequency, step by step, and it will not only shine light on what was hidden in your own, personal darkness, but it also helps shining light on the rest of the soul group, too, proportional to how much one soul can do. But the more humans that are waking up, the more light will replace the previous darkness. That’s the way to do it.

QUESTION 5: The Gnostic texts mention that we have archons within our own being. And you've mentioned that one of the goals of the archons is to ride us when the Consummation of the Age happens, so they can get into the 8th and 9th heaven. Is this meant to be translated literally? Do we literally have archons inside our own being? Or does this description of "having archons" more of a metaphor to describe the artificial soul which is archontic and reactive. Or is it both? We have an artificial soul but also literally have archons within our own being?

ANSWER: The Gnostic texts, metaphorically in a sense, tell us that each part of our body is run by an Archon, and the Vedic texts even tell us that our chakras were "taken over" by whom we call Marduk. It doesn't mean that there are beings sitting inside our body, controlling all its functions and keeping us alive or killing us, if they have that intention. I brought this subject up to some extent in the WPP, where I said that the AIF didn't necessarily tinker so much with our DNA as they added something to us that should not be there, and that is the archontic connection. As we all know, we are connected physically to our ancestors, but on a metaphysical level, while still here on Earth and in human bodies, we also have a string attached to the Archons of the Kenoma. It's more of a body/metaphysical "remote" connection. It can, in various degrees, as I see it, affect our choices and decisions, if we are operating more on a subconscious/reactive than on a more conscious level, where we make conscious and more beneficial choices that will push us ahead, rather than backward into chaos and confusion.

By falling for Matrix manipulation, we bond with the archontic side of ourselves, and this strengthens the connection between us and them. The archontic plan is to "ride our avatars," which are our light bodies, out of the Kenoma, when we, the spirited humans, leave this Construct, and they want to invade Orion, i.e., the greater universe. More specifically, they wish to control the nano-world to gain control over the entire universe. Thus, we have the Singularity with its nanotechnology. They are, through their human minions, manipulating spirited humans into a digital Cloud. From there, they will use us, and our nanotechnologically based future bodies, in a final, desperate cosmic battle, which will determine which force will gain control over the Orion Universe, aka the Eighth Heaven (see diagram on the screen). Giving our consent to become part of the Singularity construct gives the archontic forces green light to use us as their "vessels." My thought is that the Archons need the Singularity to happen ASAP, before the Consummation of the Age, so they can escape their final demise during the Consummation. They know their destiny and try to avoid it by using us in the process as vessels and "shields" in a cosmic battle, supposed to take place in Orion.
