If you want more information on AI and the Singularity, please consider buying my book, Synthetic Super Intelligence and the Transmutation of Humankind : A Roadmap to the Singularity and Beyond, which can be found at Amazon.com. It goes into the Singularity in much detail.

Being Excluded from the Metaverse

I will start this episode with an analogy. Assuming you are not willing to live off the grid, what would you do in today's world if you completely refuse to use the smartphones, the internet, and wi-fi altogether and instead choose to live the "old ways?" You will have no internet connection and no computer devices. If so, you will perhaps be at the mercy of your neighbor if you want to contact a relative or a friend, which must be done through electronic devices. Your loved ones have no old-fashioned phones or other means of communication than wi-fi. You would be almost completely cut off from the world unless someone else connected you through them. Would you want to bother people with that, and would people bother doing it for you continuously just because you stubbornly don't want wi-fi? Probably not, and you would be lost in a world where it is mandatory to use electronics to connect to others, and you can't get a job without a smartphone. The same people who protested the internet and smartphones years ago are now using them every day, and now the same people protest the Metaverse and nanotechnology—me included. The same thing is bound to happen in the future—people, in general, will adapt. Those in charge know this—they know human behavior and are perhaps not too concerned over videos like this one. Just something to be mindful of. We will discuss possible solutions at the end of this series.

Posthumanism

I have mentioned Alex Vikoulov in an earlier video in this series. He's a gung-ho singularityist and works in conjunction with the big enterprises in Silicon Valley. He said the following about our near future, and he expects much of this to have taken place already by 2035:

“By definition, posthumanism (I call it ‘cyberhumanism’) is to replace transhumanism at the center stage circa 2035. By then, mind-uploading could become a reality with gradual neuronal replacement, rapid advancements in Strong AI, massively parallel computing, and nanotechnology allowing us to directly connect our brains to the Cloud-based infrastructure of the Global Brain. Via interaction with our AI assistants, the GB [Global Brain] will know us better than we know ourselves in all respects, so mind-transfer, or rather ‘mind migration,’ for billions of enhanced humans would be seamless, sometime by mid-century.<sup>1</sup>”

And there we have the future, past the initial VR experiments, such as Facebook's Metaverse version. The scariest part in his statement is perhaps that the Global Brain will know us better than we know ourselves in all respects. This clearly tells us where this is heading; we will no longer be in control of our own minds and our individuality, regardless of what they tell us otherwise. “Big Brother” (in this case, the Global Brain) will “know us better.” This also automatically puts AI in control of our minds, as it can also, per default, infiltrate our thoughts and emotions. Of course, we are already heavily brainwashed and controlled, but transhumanism can take this to a whole new level. It is completely clear that we are heading toward a hive-mind society, eventually stuck and trapped in virtual reality. If those who are in control of the AI Cloud want to create a future war against a non-human race, for example, don't you think it would be possible to steer the entire hive-mind in that direction? Think "the Borg" in Star Trek.

Another interesting thing I have noticed is that although the term Singularity is still being used on occasion in media and among the apologists, it has gotten a bad taste, and alternative terms are being employed and favored.

Hell on Earth

There are multiple speculations within the alternative community about what the virus is, why they push vaccines, and why they isolate people through lockdowns and social distancing. As I have suggested elsewhere, it's a little of everything because the EL-ite tries to kill as many birds as they can with one stone. Therefore, they choose solutions where they can include as much as possible to drive the agenda forward. There are many of us who have realized that these events we see happening, one by one, are all steps toward the Singularity.

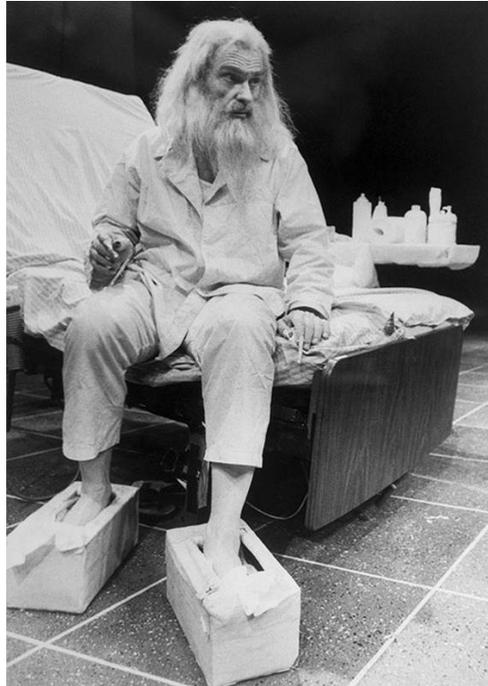

However, one thing that is not often mentioned, from what I have noticed, at least, is the obvious that they want to create a hell on Earth with an everlasting "virus" (read bioweapon), vaccines that fill you up with nanotechnology to prepare you for the transmutation into cyborgs, adding continuous boosters you will need to be able to travel and partake in daily activities outside your home, and social distancing. By pushing these boosters, they make sure everybody gets the amount of nanotech they need in their bodies to be ready for posthumanism. Upon that, they order lockdowns to further isolate people—something that can be extremely traumatic for many humans because we are social beings. Then, they discriminate so-called "anti-vaxxers" for implementing their freewill not to have foreign bodies injected into their physical bodies. It's like a racial war all over again. "No black people in the bus or in my store." We humans are very gullible. Our existence becomes more and more hellish.

Heaven on Earth: the ultimate “New Normal?”

We are amid World War III, as I see it, which is the War on the Minds. With a fake, manufactured virus, they have now created an intentional nightmare, and they say there will be no going back. They are preparing us for a “New Normal.” In the media, they make sure they repeat this phrase over and over to program our minds with it, so we get used to this term, once and for all. In general, it only takes 21-30 days of repetition to program and reprogram a human mind, as I’ve proved in previous videos. There is scientific evidence for this. But what is the New Normal? Is it a world where we have gotten used to the everlasting virus and learned to live with it, or is it something else?

In my opinion, it’s a process. The first thing they need us to get used to are the restrictions in our lives, the threats of new variants of the virus, fear of intimacy, human touch, and closeness, so we all become more avoidant personalities. Indeed, even narcissism is on the rise—all because of a so-called virus, which doesn’t kill more people than the flu. The horrific consequences that don’t logically or scientifically hold up to justify the actions they call solutions; people will suffer physically and emotionally and be put in a state of continuous fear of the world outside their doors.

We become like Howard Hughes, who was so afraid of viruses and bacteria that he completely isolated himself from the world and locked himself in.

But this is still not the New Normal—it’s just a step in that direction. Ultimately, the New Normal is Virtual Reality (VR), aka the Metaverse. Here, in the outside world, it’s a living hell (and they will make it worse, so we really can’t stand it), while in the Metaverse, everything is so much easier, and you can create your own reality the way you want it (at least to begin with to hook us). It will be a great refuge, just like social media is for people right now. Facebook and other similar platforms feel much safer than the real outside world. The Metaverse will feel even safer than that when people can operate in an environment they can create on their own and forget the horrors in the “real world.”

In the meantime, “Dr.” Fauci and his cohorts keep pushing new vaccines and boosters over x number of years into the future, keeping people busy with getting used to the virtual world. Then, one day, it will be declared that because of the vaccines people have received over the years, the virus is now defeated, when in reality, our bodies have been transformed into nanotechnology-based cyborgs, just like the rest of our environment. Then, the entire world is in the Cloud, aka the Super-Computer or the Global Brain.

“Oh,” you might say, “then, at least, we can go back to living in that world rather than connecting in the virtual world—the Metaverse!” Well, we will get into this some more later in the video series, but it’s not that simple because this outside world and the Metaverse will merge—they will be one and the same. Little do we understand what their technology actually entails. This is not homo sapiens sapiens technology—it comes from outside this world, and it was given to us to develop cyberhumanism. By the time our bodies have transmuted, we are already so used to, and stuck in VR that there is no way back. The human mind works on repetition and programming. Repeat something over and over and the mind will adapt. VR and the Metaverse are of course not different.

In the next video in this series, we are going to discuss the process in more detail that will lead to the Singularity. Keep in mind, there is no way of understanding the agenda 100%, and plans could change, as well, but we’ll do our best to discuss it based on the information we have available today. Some will also be pure speculation, which hopefully will be food for thought.
