Barbara Marciniak's Pleiadians said that the digital world is ten times more addictive than heroin. I believe that to be true.

The idea is to make our own world such a horrible place to live in (lockdowns, no ways of traveling, inflation, and financial crashes, etc.) that virtual reality will come as a relief--a refuge. In this world, corporations are running the show, and the Government is one of the largest corporations. They set the rules, and these corporations, and those who actually run them, are what makes this world miserable, and most people are not seriously protesting. They feel helpless. So, by the time the Metaverse is in place and fully functional on all levels, people will choose that before the so-called "real world." In VR, people can create their own reality, and they will feel much freer. It will also stimulate their creator god abilities, and many will love it!

But that's initially. Then the control will start creeping in on people again, but most will not notice it. Why is this process inevitable? Well, for the same reason this world has been more and more horrifying to live in: it's the same corporations that created the disaster in our world that will develop and take over the Metaverse. Do you think these corporations have changed their nature, and now they are suddenly working for the best of humanity, letting us be in charge in an open-source environment? If you answer yes, think again...

On one level, the more things change, the more they stay the same.

Isolate people with technology, and then charge them money to connect with each other. That's our benevolent corporations in action.

I see, when I research this, that many mainstream and alternative sources seem to agree that it will take another decade or so before the Metaverse is developed enough to really have great impact. This may or may not be correct, but the important thing is that it will be creeping up on us, just like all technology has over the decades. There will be protests in the beginning because people resist change, but when the change eventually gives the false impression of not being dangerous, they go with it and start to even enjoy it. That is the trap, and that is how well those in charge know human psychology. They just keep pushing through, in increments, and they know people will adjust, despite protests in the beginning, which the controlled media usually ignore.

Speaking of psychology, much of the knowledge the EL-ite has on this subject was obtained during World War II in Nazi Germany. That was when they started to seriously experiment on humans to practice what previously had been mostly theories.

Heinrich Himmler, in particular, was very interested in the occult, and he read everything he could on the subject. He then educated Adolf Hitler, Hermann Göring, Josef Göbbels, and all the rest of the Nazi EL-ite, and they created the Black Sun Society and a few other secret societies. Instead of being enlightened and work for the good of humanity, they used the knowledge for evil. They got the concept of the Aryan Race (the Namlu'u, aka the Ayrans/Orions), so they wanted to re-create them, making this "superior" race that inhabits Spirit rule over the rest of humanity. But they thought this transformation was entirely genetic because they had no concept of Spirit--just like the Archons, who don't understand Spirit, either. The Nazis had the idea that the Aryans were originally Caucasian, fair skinned, blonde, and genetically strong. They used the Nordic people as their prototype.

There is a book called "The Spear of Destiny"¹, by Trevor Ravenscroft, which discusses how Hitler was in contact with beings from the Inner Earth (therefore their expeditions to Tibet and Antarctica, etc., where there is said to be entrances to the Inner Earth), and Hitler was afraid of these Super Humans, who dictated how he and the Nazi Party should progress to create this ancient Aryan race once again. Hitler became obsessed with it. But it was mainly through the secret societies that Hitler and his scientists got knowledge about the human mind. Josef Mengele and others used it as a base for their own research. And who knows whom they channeled. And these days it is common knowledge they used Maria Orsić and the Vrtil Society for their purposes, too.

As we stand now, this world is owned by Corporations, but it is promoted that the Metaverse will be owned by us, the users. This is an illusion, because behind it all, just like with cryptocurrency, are the Big Corporations, and above that, those not-from-here.

People will get an illusion of freedom and individual ownership and freedom to create in Metaverse. And even though it might look like we own the land and the property in Metaverse, and we are the ones who are building it, is it really any difference from the Internet, which is owned by Corporations? Aren't we the ones building the Internet, too? Look at Facebook, they are hiring 10-15,000 people in Europe to build Metaverse. So, who oversees that? Not you and I, but Facebook and Silicon Valley. Most people don't think about that; they are sick and tired of being controlled by Big Brother, so they think the Metaverse is the solution and the path to freedom—not so. The EL-ite only know us all too well. People will swallow the propaganda machine hook and sinker.

Seen from a loftier perspective, the Archons, with assistance from technology, are simply copying what Sophia did when she created the blueprint, aka the Orion Universe, for human creator gods to create in. Only this time, with nanotechnology, and with the Archons in charge, we are creating ourselves out of existence by unwittingly supporting the Archons. Then, as a reward, we become shields in a Cosmic War against Orion, on the side of the oppressors.

In the next video in this series, we will discuss how the archontic forces are going to use us to attack Orion from the nano world, using human cyborgs and the human soul/mind as weapons in what can potentially become the biggest cosmic war in the history of the Universe.
