Hello, Wes Penre here. Time for a fresh September Q&A! Please submit more questions at wespenre2@gmail.com and put Q&A in the subject line.

QUESTION 1: Are sexual fantasies harmful to spirited beings? Do such fantasies draw immediate attention to the archons and other negative energies? You mentioned online dream interpretation websites in the last Q&A. According to my research, they stated sexual fantasies are ways of releasing. They also help one with developing self-love and self-care as well as one's imagination. Is this all true?

MY COMMENT: Sexual fantasies are normal—at least as long as we are humans here in the Matrix. When I browse around on the Internet, I unfortunately notice that some quite influential truth-seekers and influencers strongly emphasize that we should have nothing to do with sexual fantasies or sex in general. It is something we should suppress, or we feed the gods and this or that can happen to us, unless we cut out all sex from our lives. It sounds like something from the Dark Ages. After all, the EL-ite have for long tried to stigmatize and suppress sex in humans in order to control us.

This is very sad and detrimental because sex is our most potent energy that we should use for many different reasons. We can of course choose not to, but I hope not for the above reasons. Sex and orgasms are extremely healthy for body and soul/mind and help improve our overall well-being if practiced properly. Degraded and abusive sex, or sex without boundaries will most likely feed the gods, but intimate sex with someone we are close to, where the partners dedicate themselves to each other is healthy and something we humans benefit from. It feeds our blood cells with powerful energy and increases our well-being and can also increase the quality of life. As mentioned in the WPP, female orgasms in general can be used to contact Orion if an intention to do so is set before having sex, explained elsewhere. Men can do it, too, but women are better designed for it.

So, in summary, sexual fantasies is a part of the process, but it is important that we have the knowledge about the gods, Orion, and the potent creative energy of sex, and set up boundaries in the sense that we don't allow anyone to steal this energy from us. This can be done by just making a firm decision to own your sexuality.

QUESTION 2: If we die simultaneously with someone we love, is it possible to talk to that person and help him out of the matrix?

MY COMMENT: It depends. Different people react differently after death. If both people are relatively open-minded, it is possible to communicate after death. Important to remember, however, is that we need to exit through the Grid as soon as we can and not communicate with anyone dwelling in the astral, regardless of who it is. So, if you can't convince the person right away, I suggest you exit on your own because the other person is not yet ready to follow. I understand this can be devastating, but exiting is a choice the soul has when ready for it.

QUESTION 3: Dear Wes, when we use radiesthesian pendulum and we ask a question, where do we get answer from? The akashic rec., our subconscious, or...?

MY COMMENT: Taking into consideration that the procedure is done appropriately, and the response is not coming from the persons hand because they want a certain response, I would say the answer comes from the subconscious mind and/or the unconscious mind, which is our collective mind. You already know the answer on an otherwise non-accessible level, and the body reacts to the question and gives you the answer via the pendulum.

QUESTION 4: I was wondering; how do you live? I can't help but feel incredibly depressed and anxious now. I'm sure the aliens are laughing at me and I'm feeding them the emotions they want. But I can't help it. It's very disturbing knowing about this. How do you deal with it? I can't live like this.

MY COMMENT: I understand your dilemma, and I think many people have gone through the stage you're in right now after having had the shocking experiences when finding out what is really going on behind the scenes. It's a natural and normal reaction, and for most people, it will pass. Although it's not how we want it to be, it's always better to know than not to know. Yes, it would be continuously depressing if there wasn't any solution, but fortunately there is a solution, which is to leave the Matrix when this lifetime is over. I assume you have heard about the holes in the Grid, which I have talked about a lot, and which I also mentioned in the Wes Penre Papers. So, the way I see it is that being aware of the exit, I will make the best out of the rest of this incarnation and concentrate on things I still like to experience here, such as nature, writing, reading, researching, learning... your interests or passions might be different, of course. I am not depressed, but quite relieved, knowing this is my last incarnation here, and a much better place is waiting.

If you haven't heard of the Grid and how to exit, go to wespenrevideos.com. At the top of the website is a list of links. Click on "Exiting the Grid."

I understand it may take a while to get over the shock about this world and beyond, but hopefully it will help if you learn more about how to get out of this mind prison we are all a part of. Knowledge really is power.

QUESTION 5: I have been pondering on the declaration to have our memories restored at the exit from Kenoma and entry into Orion. Imagining having several thousand years of memories returned to me at once could be devastating; especially since I would not have the skill of keeping my 'thoughts' in check. You have alluded to us needing to be careful, otherwise it could influence our state adversely and/or create misunderstanding with the star people. My memories of possible several lifetimes were extremely unsettling, even though I understood that they may not be mine or partially true. It is my intent to state ' I am going through that hole at highest aspect of myself and unite with my Soul Splinter now.'

MY COMMENT: First, and in general, here on Earth, where life is extremely dense, we have, as we all know, amnesia. The subconscious and unconscious minds are mainly what are guiding humans in their decisions and every day lives, whether or not they are aware of this. Our traumas and memories are mostly hidden from us and surface in form of triggers and PTSD.

As homo sapiens, we have our own subconscious mind to deal with, as well as the collective subconscious and unconscious minds, connected through the Grid. When we leave the Matrix, we also leave the collective consciousness behind, which will take away much of the burden. Left is what used to be our own subconscious mind, which will be revealed to us, once we have left the Matrix and entered Orion, the Greater Universe.

Sitting here, in our dense and anxious 3D bodies, it's easy to imagine an overwhelming feeling when memories surface that have accumulated over millennia, but the soul/mind is well equipped to handle this. If we think about it, what is emotional healing and shadow work?

It's when we confront the painful memories that surface and see them for what they are. After that, they are integrated into our conscious minds and won't be triggering anymore because we know what they are, and the accumulated charge that has been stuck in these memories dissolve. Thinking about it in these terms, regaining all memories at once may seem overwhelming.

However, I doubt all memories will return at once after we've exited. I think it will come in increments, in a pace our minds can handle. Perhaps we still won't have immediate full access to everything on our own after all the experiences we've had here, but I have been told that we will get the assistance we need with things from the Divine forces in Orion once we're there. Also, the mind has ways to protect itself. The important thing is that we, as soul/minds, are willing to work on ourselves, be willing to fully repent from our existence in this Matrix and accept redemption—and we must be honest about it, of course. The problem Orion ETs have is that they are afraid we humans are not willing to change once we've exited and will continue our destructive ways because that's what we have been programmed with—we've adopted the minds of our oppressor gods. All of us to a greater or lesser degree. Therefore, we would gain from doing shadow work already now, as much as we need to and as much as we can.

I am not sure what you mean by calling your Orion "soul splinter." That's not a term I have been using, from what I know. We do exist in different dimensions and densities simultaneously, so perhaps you mean a higher aspect of yourself? If so, a better command to give yourself could perhaps be, "I am going through a hole in the Grid to unite with the highest possible aspect of myself NOW!" You can word it as you wish—I just gave an idea. One of our forum members, Suzaku, wrote an essay recently, bringing up things he's learned from the WPP, forum discussions, and his own conclusions when it comes to leaving the Matrix and what to do and not to do. His essay is called, "Exit Handout—Steps to Leave the Matrix" and can be found on the forum at wespenreboards.com or on my blog at wespenrevideos.com, under the link, "Exiting the Grid." Well worth reading for those who haven't yet.

Once we're out of the Grid, we can do whatever we want, but my suggestion is to go to the Queen/Sophia first for further guidance and assistance. A good command to self after having exited would be, "I am going to the highest aspect of the Mother Goddess possible NOW!" Hope this helps.
