
Q&A Session #1, 2025

by Wes Penre, January 2, 2025

Welcome to the first Q&A of 2025, and thank you for your questions! Please send more to wespenre2@gmail.com, and put Q&A in the subject line so I won't miss your email.

Please be as short as possible with your questions. I get too many long-winded emails, and I notice I hesitate to include some of them because I can't take the time to shorten them. So, please do the best you can to be relatively short. I understand that sometimes keeping it short is not an option to convey your message. Just doing your best is good enough.

If you want to check out any of my books, please visit Amazon.com. This link goes to a collection of all my books. Books are now translated into Spanish, German, Russian, Polish, and Estonian by different publishers, including Amazon. Please see more details here: <https://wespenrevideos.com/2024/08/28/wes-penre-books-published-in-multiple-languages/> (the German translations are also at Amazon.de to save shipping costs if you're in Germany). This will be updated once a newly translated book is published anywhere.

Please note! Suppose the question(s) you submit is/are omitted. In that case, it's usually for two reasons: I couldn't include all questions that week, so keep an eye open for one of the following Q&As, or for some reason, the question(s) did not fit the hallmark for a Q&A—perhaps too broad or complex to answer in this format. It's never because I think a question is “stupid.”

Here is this week's session:

Question #1: Tell me how the sending of a soul into incarnation takes place. Before the incarnation, it must sign a contract, without which it will not be allowed. But what exactly is written in the contract? For example, it will probably be written there that this soul must be born into a poor family, it will be disabled, it will suffer and suffer, it will not have children, and so on, for example. And another soul will have a contract for a happy, rich life. Can't souls choose their living conditions and parents in advance? Can't a soul say I want to be born into a rich family and live in such and such a place. For example, I don't like my family and all my relatives; I want to live in a new family with good, rich parents. Can I set the conditions for a new incarnation like that?

Comment: What people call a "soul contract" is not anything written—it's a "verbal" consent between the deceased and the Astral Workers, as I sometimes call them. However, this consent is based on manipulation and the deceased ignorance and should, therefore, be void. The Astral Workers, working for the Khan Kings/Archons, know exactly how things work and what they are doing. There are two major reasons people agree to incarnate (although there may be more). First, they are clueless about what happens after death, so when they see the "Tunnel of Light," they are drawn to it because it seems like something they should do. It's a light in the darkness. The Tunnel leads to the recycling center inside Mars, and the deceased gets a life review. The Astral Worker points out the good and bad things in the person's life and strongly suggests the deceased go back into a new incarnation to remedy their "bad actions" so they can continue their evolution on Earth. Because humans are emotional beings with empathy and compassion, they feel ashamed and guilty, so they often agree. This way, we take on the Khan Kings' karma because, after all, they manipulated us into ignorance and lowered our frequency. That way, we blame all of it on ourselves, believing we are "bad people." So, we are willing to go back and "make things right." By agreeing to this, the Khans are "off the hook." That's the "soul contract."

The second reason is that deceased "relatives" and "dear ones" come to meet the dying person, guiding them into the light and telling them that this is the route to take. They are not relatives but thought forms the Khan Kings can easily produce from the dying person's memory. The most beloved ones will be chosen to guide the dying person, and it's all deception. These thought forms will appear very realistic in the astral.

We can't decide who we will be in the next incarnation since we all repeatedly reincarnate into the same bloodline. So, if you reincarnate, you might do so as your own grandchild. You always stay within your bloodline because that's your "genetic family." It's all about DNA, and this is the slow way the Khan Kings let us "evolve." When we incarnate, we have ancestral DNA connections to previous lives. Usually, we don't remember them, but subconsciously, we sometimes act like our grandparents or someone else on our ancestral timeline. The memories are there, and to some tiny degree, they affect us negatively or positively, depending on the overall nature of the bloodline. It's all about DNA and bloodlines, as I wrote in my book, "The Story of Isis and the War on Bloodlines."

If we were randomly incarnated into different bloodlines, we would never "evolve," and the Khan Kings would certainly have broken the contract with Orion to let us graduate. Now, the Khans are under the false impression that they have kept their part of the deal, they let us evolve at a snail's pace and under much pressure and trauma. This is also why certain souls, when the Khan Kings consider them to have evolved enough, have the choice to become spirit guides and teachers in the astral. It's a fake gesture of "good will" by the Khan Kings. Not that they care about us, but they care, to some degree, about their contract with Orion, apparently not understanding that they are constantly breaking it because the Khans continually justify their horrendous actions.

Question #2: What would you say to someone who says they are a materialist and do not really consider metaphysics? How can I convince them that metaphysics is something to look into?

Comment: A good rule of thumb is initiating communication to see how the person responds. If they ridicule you, disregard or discard your information, or start talking about something else, I would stop educating them. You can always give them some references on a piece of paper in case they are interested in the future. It's futile to try to "convince" somebody. First, that creates more resistance, and second, that can easily be abusive. I have no right to force my beliefs or convictions on others. Everybody is on their individual path, and to interfere with that is a breach of free will. Third, trying to convince someone who does not want to be convinced will also drain your energy—it will easily be exhausting and lead nowhere.

Question #3: There is a very interesting situation at the moment. Donald Trump has won the election. However, it appears that massive efforts are being made to, by any means necessary, create events such as a war or an alien invasion to effectively prevent him from assuming power as the President of the United States.

A similar phenomenon is unfolding in Romania, where Călin Georgescu—a patriotic sovereigntist and seemingly a Trump ally—emerged as the victor in the recent presidential elections. This victory dealt a staggering blow to the current political forces in Romania, shattering their nefarious plans.

Wes Penre Productions

As a result, through a corrupt judiciary, they orchestrated a velvet coup and annulled the election results.

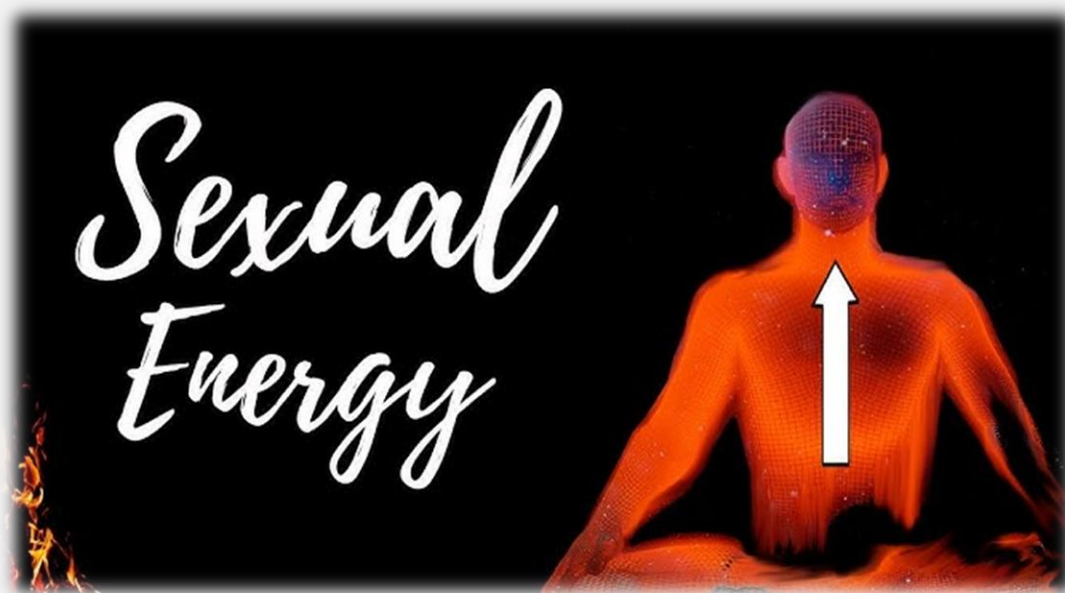

Meanwhile, it seems there is an accelerated push for Romania to join the war alongside Ukraine against Russia. If this succeeds, it would effectively block both Călin's inauguration as Romania's president and Trump's as the U.S. president.

I see these events, with the imminent victories of Trump and Călin, as a possible shift in power from Marduk to Enki.

What are your thoughts on these developments?

Comment: We live in interesting times if we choose to see it that way. Although I have no hard evidence for this, it seems like En.ki is back in the game, and if so, Trump would be his current lieutenant, and so would those who work with him. What brought him back into the game is unknown, although I have my suspicions. It's nothing I can discuss now (not yet), particularly since I could be wrong. But the cosmic war is on. Who will win those battles is uncertain. If this is truly a power shift coming up, and we want to learn from history, the power structures change back and forth. We will see what happens once Trump takes office. All in all, regardless of who is in power, it's not good for us.

Question #4: I'm finding it hard to regulate my sexual energy in a non-destructive way. I believe I masturbate far too much and have a pornography dependency. Every day is a battle to quit. Could you share some advice?

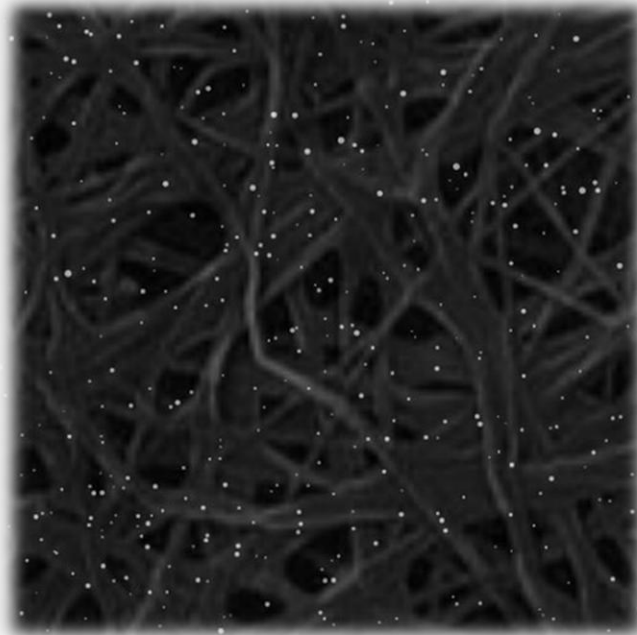

Comment: I am not an expert on this, so I can only speak on it in general terms. I can tell you feel shame and guilt over this, and you feel a great resistance both to excessive masturbation and pornography. As weird as it might seem, resistance toward something makes people stuck, and they can't progress. If we think of a problem as two forces of opposed energies clashing against each other, the energies get stuck until the problem is solved, and it needs to be solved on a higher level than it was created, as Einstein so rightfully said.

So, my suggestion is first to try to get rid of the porn addiction. Any addiction is compulsive, and it is habitual and, therefore, difficult to break. Most people dig into the problem with guilt and shame, which makes things worse. Instead, redirect the energy and train your mind to change habits. I'm not saying you should stop masturbating, but porn, in particular, can create other long-term effects, whereas astral beings take advantage of the addiction and tune in. So, in my opinion, that's the first thing to bring attention to. There are other ways to satisfy oneself than watching porn. Like with any addiction/compulsion, it won't be easy in the beginning. Maybe start with doing things differently every other time, with porn and without porn, interchangeably, and then increase the alternative way until you've gotten used to doing it without porn. The human mind can reprogram itself, and it's well known that it takes 21-30 days before we change behaviors if we put our minds to it. So, it's possible.

Wes Penre Productions

How much is too much when it comes to masturbation? I know of no guidelines. It's an individual choice. Just make sure you understand what is your choice and what you are inclined to do because of society's dogma, which is someone else's guidelines and not necessarily yours.

If you still have difficulty breaking your patterns, there's no shame in getting help from a professional.

Question #5: Sir, what are the "holes in the Grid," and how do you find them? Please explain.

Comment: Around the Earth, there is a bioelectrical field/grid/frequency fence that is partly artificial (held in place with Orion technology that the Sirians are using) and partly the combined energy of our human soul group, where we are all united in a network, just like the neurons in our brains. When you die and leave your body, look "up" with your deceased body as a reference, and you will see the Grid above you like a fuzzy energy field. In this field, there are holes through which you, as the metaphysical self, can exit the Matrix and go to Orion.

I have written about this on my blog, and a friend, Guy Urata, did, too, from a slightly different angle. Here are the web addresses where you can learn more:

Question #6: You have said in the past that if you go into the light, you are sent back almost immediately, so how do some people become guardian angels/spirit guides and or Ascended Masters?

Why would the Alien Invader Force (the Khan Kings) give a human any of these positions, which, although still in the Matrix, seem far better than coming back here?

Also, if humans are, in fact, being put into these positions, is it possible that real spirit guides/guardian angels are actually coming through mediums sometimes?

Also, if let's say there is a guardian angel assigned to you or me, would they not be aware of the research you are doing and or that I am learning from you about going through a hole in the grid and about Orion and all the rest and would they not themselves be learning about it through us as they observe us and would it not spur some kind of curiosity in them OR since they have already passed over, from their perspective think we are being misled?

Comment: Some souls get “promoted” in the afterlife because of the Khan King (Archon) contract with Orion, where they promised to let us evolve and graduate so we could return to Orion as a soul group. Therefore, the Khan Kings have their own ascension program, which is incredibly slow, tedious, and overall traumatic in different ways. A soul the Khan Kings consider evolved enough will get the option to be a spirit guide, a teacher, and eventually, an Ascended Master—not always in that order. But all of these former homo sapiens, then promoted, are stuck in the Matrix.

So, why do they not escape? As within, so without. If the holes and the Grid are not ringing true to a certain discarnate avatar, they will pay no attention to it. And just like here, these “ascended humans” are indoctrinated even in the astral into thinking that exiting through the Grid is just another New Age story, and the true freedom lies in the archontic “ascension.” Manipulation does not only exist here on Earth; it continues in the astral.
